

History of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference (CPC)

The Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA) was founded in 1911 as the Empire Parliamentary Association, which later became the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association in 1948.

The Empire Parliamentary Association was founded at a meeting on 18 July 1911 in what was then House of Commons Committee Room 15 in the Palace of Westminster. As well as Members of the UK Parliament, the meeting was attended by representatives of the then dominion Parliaments of Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Newfoundland and South Africa. In 1924, the first conference was held outside London, with representatives spending two months in southern Africa, starting in Maseru in what is now Lesotho before moving across South Africa. Conferences followed in Australia and Canada, although London remained as the favoured destination.

The Commonwealth Parliamentary Association emerged from the Empire Parliamentary Association at a conference in London in October 1948, as Parliamentarians preceded their governments by several months in recognizing the future lay in working together as equals co-operating to build a new world. The Commonwealth was not to be born officially at the government level until 1949.

CPA Conferences, later known as the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference (CPC), became annual from 1961, having previously been held every two years, and they added discussions on parliamentary and electoral processes to the usual agenda of political – especially foreign policy – issues. Seminars, such as the Westminster Seminar on Parliamentary Practice and Procedure which began in the early 1950s, meetings of Presiding Officers and Clerks and study groups on parliamentary subjects also began at this time.

The CPA has since 1981 held Small Branches Conferences for Members from more than 30 jurisdictions with populations of up to a current ceiling of 500,000 people. The CPA Small Branches Conferences are usually held in the margins of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference (CPC). Members discuss political problems and the operation of democratic systems in some of the world's smallest jurisdictions through the CPA Small Branches Network and in 2016, the first CPA Small Branches Chairperson was elected.

The Commonwealth Women Parliamentarians (CWP) was founded as an informal group in 1989 to increase the number of female elected representatives in Parliaments and Legislatures across the Commonwealth and to ensure that women's issues are brought to the fore in parliamentary debate and legislation. The CWP was formally recognised by the CPA in 1996 and the CWP Chairperson was first elected in 2004. The CWP triennial conferences were first held in 2004 and are usually held in the margins of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference (CPC) every three years.

The CPA celebrated its centennial in 2011 and has continued to develop the best traditions of the Commonwealth and the CPA to honour the work of the Association in a way which will promote and advance the evolution of the parliamentary system throughout the Commonwealth.

In 1948, the Empire Parliamentary Association became the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association. The annual conference changed from the Empire Parliamentary Conference to the Commonwealth Parliamentary Conference. Conferences prior to 1948 were held as the Empire Parliamentary Conference and delegation visit to Parliaments.

Updated April 2022/CPAHQ

^{*} The CPA Small Branches Conferences and the CWP triennial Conferences were held in the same venue as the CPC unless stated otherwise.

^{}In 2015, the annual conference was due to be held in Pakistan, but this was later moved to London, United Kingdom.

^{}The CPA Executive Committee was reconstituted as the 61st General Assembly in October 2015 to conduct essential business for the Association.
